

Fulbright students receive certificates

US AMBASSADOR William Monroe has presented certificates of completion to Bahrain Fulbright students and two Fulbright scholars who have completed their studies and research in the US.

The Fulbright student scholarship provides two years of funding for exceptional Bahrainis to pursue master's or Ph.D. at US universities. Fulbright scholars undertake nine months of research for the Ph.D. holders who wish to enhance their research at a US university in the US. The Fulbright graduates are Jehan Al Murbati who has completed a master's in engineering at Tufts University and Zuhair Haider who has completed master's in administrative studies at Boston University.

The Fulbright scholars are

Dr Ali Loury who researched education for gifted students at Yale University and Dr

Khalid Tabbara who researched immunology at the National Institute of Health.
